Course SWK 202 70
Credits 3
Mondays from 4:00PM – 6:20PM

Course Domain:

This course is intended as an introduction to the American system of social welfare. It is also the first professional course in the social work curriculum primarily focused on providing content on social welfare policy and services.

The historical development of the social welfare institution will be explored, with special emphasis upon the values, attitudes, and ideologies which have and continue to shape social welfare policies and programs. A feminist perspective on social welfare history will also be considered. The contemporary scope of the social welfare institution will also be examined, including an overview of current programs and the impact these programs have had on reducing social problems and on the people they are designed to serve. Poverty, inequality and oppression will be considered as the key social issues that social welfare policies and services are designed to address.

The relationship between social work practice and the current array of social welfare services and programs will be explored throughout the course. The future of social welfare will be considered as well as the elements and potentiality of an American society that can fully meet the living needs of its entire population.

Course Objectives:

This course is designed to enable students to:

Program Competency 2.1.1, 2.1.5

1. Advocate for client access to social welfare services as well as for human rights and social and economic justice.

Program Competency 2.1.3

2. Use critical thinking in analyzing models of assessment, presentation, intervention and evaluation regarding social welfare programs and services.

Program Competency 2.1.4

3. Recognize the extent to which the structures and values of social welfare programs and systems may oppress, marginalize, alienate, or create or enhance privilege or power within society.
Program Competency 2.1.6, 2.1.8

4. Use practice experience to inform research about social welfare policies and programs and their impact on service delivery and to use research findings to actually engage in improving social welfare policies and the delivery of social services.

Program Competency 2.1.7

5. Become knowledgeable about the ways social welfare programs, policies and systems promote or deter people in maintaining or achieving health and well-being.

Program Competency 2.1.8

6. Become knowledgeable about how policy affects service delivery as well as the history and current structures of social policies and services, the role of policy in service delivery, and the role of practice in policy development.

Program Competency 2.1.9

7. Provide leadership in promoting change in social welfare policies and services delivery and practice to improve service quality.

Course Outcomes:

Students will demonstrate a comprehensive understanding of the complex of historical, philosophical, socioeconomic, psychological and social biological roots of the development of the social work profession and of U.S. social welfare policies and services.

Assessment: Students will read From Poor Low to Welfare State and Regulating the Lives of Women, watch selected videos, and then apply this knowledge by writing an extensive paper tracing the roots of services to women and their dependent children. Students will also write reaction papers to all assigned chapters in Regulating.

Students will demonstrate an understanding awareness and sensitivity to the dynamics of social and economic injustices and their human impact, particularly upon those populations at risk in the Lehigh Valley. This includes the student’s development of a rationale for the ethical need to be an advocate for social and economic justice.

Assessment: Students will read The Jungle, Amazing Grace and selected articles and chapters from American Social Welfare Policy, and will view selected videos. Students will then write a paper applying the knowledge gained about the history of the dynamics of injustices and their human impact. Students will then research and write a second paper analyzing the current dynamics of injustices and their impact. This second paper will include on site visits to areas associated with economic deprivation in the Lehigh Valley. Students will also write reaction papers to all assigned chapters and articles.

Students will evidence an understanding of the current programs that comprise the social welfare system in the U.S. including their assets, limitations and relevant delivery systems.
Assessment: Students will read selected chapters in American Social Welfare Policy and other assigned articles and view selected videos. Students will then complete an exam testing their knowledge of the major U.S. social welfare programs. Students will also write reaction papers to all assigned chapters and articles.

Required Student Texts:

Supplementary Texts (There will be assigned readings from these books which will be on reserve in the Library):

Other Useful Texts:

Student Assignments:

Each student is expected to do high quality work in completing the following assignments:

1. To attend classes regularly and to read all assigned readings before class sessions so as to participate meaningfully in class discussions. This will include written synopses of selected readings. Each synopsis will consist of no less than 200 words describing the essential knowledge gained by the student in that reading. Synopses submitted with less than 200 words cannot be revised. Synopses assigned before Spring Break must be submitted no later than the last class meeting before Spring Break in order to receive full credit. All synopses assigned after Spring Break must be submitted no later than the last day the class meets in order to receive full credit. The grade for synopses will be the percentage of the number of synopses assigned compared to the number completed by the student adequately and on time.

2. To write a five-page paper on a student selected social problem. Specific written criteria for this assignment will be presented by the instructor.

3. To read the novel The Jungle and then write a five-page paper on it that describes the living/social conditions in that time period and setting as described in the novel. Specific written criteria for this assignment will be presented by the instructor.

4. To engage in a field project with a partner that is designed to help sensitize the student to the circumstances of living associated with low-income families. This will include reading and responding to the Kozol book Amazing Grace: The Lives of Children and the Conscience of a Nation. Specific written criteria for this assignment will be presented by the instructor.

5. To prepare for and successfully complete an individual exam based on the student's knowledge of current social welfare programs.

6. To research and write a ten-page paper on the history of the social welfare response to the needs of mothers and their dependent children. Specific written criteria for this assignment will be presented by the instructor.
Note: All multi-page assignments must be stapled. All assignments are due on the dates listed in the course schedule. Assignments turned in later than these due dates will be reduced by 1/3 grade for each day late including weekends. The last day in which late assignments may be submitted, including synopses, is the last day the class is scheduled to meet.

CLASSEEROOM PROTOCOL

Appropriate classroom behavior is implicit in the Cedar Crest College Honor Code. Such behavior is defined and guided by complete protection for the rights of all students and faculty to a courteous, respectful classroom environment. That environment is free from distractions such as late arrivals, early departures, inappropriate conversations and any other behaviors that might disrupt instruction and/or compromise students' access to their Cedar Crest College education.

Furthermore:
Students are expected to have prompt and regular classroom attendance in accordance with the policy stated on the syllabus.

Faculty are expected to make clear on the first day of class reasons for specific classroom decorum and repercussions for non-compliance. Faculty should be aware of setting boundaries and procedures for exceptions to expectation stated in the syllabus.

HONOR PHILOSOPHY

The Cedar Crest College Honor Philosophy is based upon the principle that, as a self-governing body, students have the ability to create an atmosphere of trust and support. Within this environment, individuals are empowered to make their own decisions, develop personal regard for the system under which they live, and achieve a sense of integrity and judgment that will guide them through life.

Social Work Program Attendance Policy

Social work courses typically meet only fourteen sessions each semester. In the interests of your development as a professional social work practitioner as well as the interests of your future clients, it is vital for you to attend these class sessions. Therefore, the Social Work Program’s Attendance Policy is as follows:

1) You may miss two class sessions for whatever reasons without penalty.
2) If you miss a third class session the highest overall grade you can receive for the course is a “B”.
3) If you miss a fourth class session the highest overall grade you can receive for the course is a “C”.
4) Five or more class absences will result in your need to retake the course.

Note: Save your two accepted absences for unforeseen circumstances such as illness, transportation problems, work and child care responsibilities, etc. These will not be acceptable excuses for absence if you have already missed two class sessions. Late arrival to class/early departure, will cumulatively count toward your two accepted absences.

Students representing the college in athletics will be excused from class for games/matches/meets only, not for practices. However, student athletes who are maintaining a less than “C” average in the course will not be excused from class.

In all cases of missed classes, it is the student’s responsibility to do whatever is necessary to compensate for any missed assignments or lecture material.
